Meade And Dilworth Disagree On Shooting

Former GOP Leader Hurt In Philly Club

Philadelphia (AP)—District Attorney Richardson Dilworth and former Republican City Chairman William F. Meade, old political foes, told conflicting stories last night about a shooting in which Meade suffered injuries to his ear lobe, neck and a finger.

Dilworth issued a statement in which he said the 47-year-old Meade had been "shot in the face by his girl friend, Virginia Carroll," an attractive blonde. Meade described Dilworth's version of the shooting a "damn fool lie," and said he had been wounded by an unidentified assailant.

The district attorney said Meade, chairman of the city's Board of Revision of Taxes, had been shot at a club in South Philadelphia. He identified Meade's assailant as "Miss Carroll, a former docket clerk in the district attorney's office." She now works in the jury commissions office, Dilworth said.

Meade told this version of the shooting: "I was seated by the window in the club. Three shots were fired by somebody on the street. They all missed me. I was cut on the face and the lobe of the ear, the neck and on a finger by flying glass. It was not serious."

Asked about Dilworth's reference to Miss Carroll, Meade said, "Yes, I guess Virginia was around." Morton Witkin, another top GOP leader then said he was with Meade at the time of the shooting. Witkin said he was uninjured.

Police said an unidentified witness to the shooting went to the rectory of St. John the Evangelist church and told a priest about the shooting. Police said the man told the priest he wanted guidance on what to do.

The priest called police who investigated and said they had taken two men into custody for questioning.

The district attorney said Meade and Miss Carroll had been in a club on Saturday night. After staying there several hours, Dilworth said, they went to the lobby of an adjoining hotel.

They had a quarrel in the lobby, Dilworth continued, and Miss Carroll shot Meade in the face. Dilworth said he did not know what kind of pistol she used.

Dilworth said that the two were helped out of the hotel and taken to a house across the street. He added police have been unable to find a trace of either Meade or the Carroll girl from that point.

Police said they were trying to piece together fragments of information in the case. Dilworth declined to elaborate further on his statement.

Meade started his political career in the 10th ward on the fringe of Philadelphia's tenderloin several years after graduating from high school. He held a position as secretary to a municipal judge and at the age of 30 became the youngest man ever made a city real estate assessor.

He rose through the political ranks to become GOP city chairman in 1948. Meade served at this post until June, 1951, when he retired after unsuccessfully opposing the candidacies of Gov. James H. Duff for U.S. Senator and John S. Fine for governor of Pennsylvania.

Police said it wasn't until 12 hours after the shooting that they received their first information. It was almost eight hours after that, Dilworth said, that police were sure who was shot and the name of the assailant.

Investigating officers, including Police Commissioner Thomas J. Gibbons, said the unidentified witness told them he was awakened in his room at the Minerva hotel by three shots and the fall of a body outside his room.

Three men carried a body across the street into a house, the witness said. When police arrived at the hotel they found part of a wooden wall in the lobby had recently been ripped. The piece was not cut or sawed, just torn away from the partition. It was about six inches wide and about 14 inches long. But under it, on the plaster board, were marks that resembled bullet marks, police said.

No bullets were found nor was there any penetration.

LOU ANNE BOERS couldn't go to the Shrine show because she was immobilized in Chicago hospital with broken legs and a head injury as a result of having been hit by an auto. So clown Harry Dann brought his part of the show to her bedside. She is feeling his nose to determine its authenticity. The driver who struck Lou Anne was not insured. Friends have contributed $1,500 to help pay the hospital bills.

Eisenhower Backers Expect General To Return In Time For Pre-Convention Speeches

(By the Associated Press)
Political strategists backing Gen. Dwight Eisenhower are saying privately—that he'll be back from Europe in time to make some speeches before the Republican nominating convention in July.

And in other comment yesterday about the NATO chief, being boomed for the GOP nomination for president, Senator Russell said he thought Eisenhower was against compulsory FEPC.

Russell, a Georgia Democrat running for the Democratic nomination, said "so far as I know" Eisenhower is not for compulsory FEPC.

FEPC refers to a fair employment practices commission law which would be aimed at preventing discrimination for reasons of race or religion in the hiring and firing of employees.

The Eisenhower boosters were saying the general would return—but they were not definite as to just when—despite his statement in January that while he would accept the GOP nomination if given him, he would not take part in pre-convention activities.

His supporters hope Eisenhower will accept invitations to speak at what one of them called non-political functions. They think he could do that without violating his January position.

On other sectors of the political front, Senator Kefauver said there are indications Democratic leaders in some northern big cities may back him. He said he thought opposition to his bid for the Democratic nomination for the presidency is not "nearly as widespread as the rumors would have you believe."

The Tennesseean said he thought he could mend the North-South split in the Democratic party.

President Truman at Key West, was planning to meet shortly with Frank E. McKinney, chairman of the Democratic party for talks which may have a bearing on whether he will run for another term.

McKinney and Truman have not met since the President was trounced by Kefauver in the New Hampshire primary. McKinney endorsed New Hampshire Democrats' request that Truman's name

Murray Puts Off Decision On Walkout

Washington (AP)—Philip Murray yesterday put off until Thursday his union's answer to the government's plea for a 16-day postponement of a nationwide steel strike now set for next Sunday night.

The delay apparently means at least a slowdown in the production of steel.

Murray, president of the Steelworkers union and the CIO, told the Wage Stabilization board (WSB) his policy committee, meeting here Thursday, "will give serious consideration" to the postponement appeal of Board Chairman Nathan Feinsinger.

Feinsinger asked the union Saturday to delay the threatened strike at least until April 8. He still hopes the dispute—mainly over wages—can be settled without a strike.

Big U.S. Steel already has advised the board it must begin to curtail operations Tuesday in the production of ferro manganese, used in hardening steel. This would involve a relatively small output.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube said it would start banking furnaces and halting production on Wednesday. Other companies have said they will start an orderly shutdown Thursday.

Even if Murray's policy committee agrees to postpone the threatened strike of 650,000 basic steel workers—it would be the fourth postponement—loss of production might be heavy. Much of the industry works around the clock, seven days a week.

The wage board, so far as is known, has not voted on any of the 16 issues on which it will make recommendations. It still is discussing facts in the case.

The main issues in the dispute are a union demand for an 18 1/2 cent wage boost, "fringe" increases amounting to about that much, a guaranteed annual wage, and a union work shop, which would compel all workers to join the union.

Cleveland (AP)—Steelmakers are prepared to "sit out a strike" unless the government permits price boosts matching union demands for wage increases. "Steel" magazine said yesterday.

The metal working journal declared "there's a 3-2 chance" the CIO-United Steelworkers will walk out in a demand for higher wages. "Steel" said the industry's "tougher attitude reflects the easing in steel demand of the last two months and the realization that adequate profit margins must be maintained in the months ahead when operations may drift to lower levels. Better to suffer a strike now than to accept an inequitable settlement, they reason."

A strike, the magazine continued, "would plunge the country right back into the steel shortage it is just working out of. The last time when steel demand and supply were getting into balance the Korean war set off a shortage. That was 20 months ago."

Rabid Cat Attacks Two Railroad Men

Wilkes-Barre (AP)—A rabid domestic cat attacked two Lehigh Valley railroad employees yesterday and then sought cover under the tracks of a diesel engine, delaying the start of the engine a half hour before the cat was killed.

The cat, weighing 16 to 17 pounds, pinned two employees in a shanty in the Coxton yards of the railroad. While the two men looked out a window, the cat chewed the wood around the door frame. The cat left the shanty and ran down a nearby track, jumping up on the trucks of the lead diesel. The diesel was about to leave for Wilkes-Barre where it was scheduled to take a passenger train to New York at 6 p.m.

A man who lives near the yards killed the cat with a shotgun.

Congress Goes To Work On Foreign Aid

Washington (AP)—Congress gets to work in earnest this week to try to learn why government officials say this is a "critical time" in the buildup of western military strength.

The military picture, sketched only in broad outline so far, shows growing official concern over Asia, a hopeful uncertainty in Europe and a large question mark over all the Middle East, except Greece and Turkey.

Military chiefs will fill in the details, largely in secret, during congressional committee hearings on the President's $7,900,000,000 foreign aid request for the year starting July 1.

Mutual Security Director W. Averell Harriman, the administration's lead-off man, will testify again today before the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

Battleship Wisconsin Hit By Red Guns

Washington (AP)—The Navy said last night the battleship Wisconsin had been hit Saturday by Communist shore fire off Korea and that three crewmen were slightly hurt.

Those hurt were not immediately identified.

Adm. Robert Hickey, chief of naval public information, said the big battleship had been hit late Saturday (Sunday, Korea time).

He said the Wisconsin continued her mission and with the aid of a spotting helicopter had knocked out a Red gun battery ashore. It was not known whether it was the one that had inflicted the damage.

The Wisconsin has been pounding Red positions along the northeast Korean coast. There have been no reports that the battleship has been hit before by Red fire.

Superficial damage was done to her superstructure, the Navy reported.

Tokyo, Monday (AP)—Informed sources here said today the battleship Wisconsin was hit by Communist shore fire Sunday. Three crewmen were reported slightly injured.

The Wisconsin has been bombarding Red positions along the northeast Korean coast. A naval summary said the battleship threw 16-inch shells as far as 18 miles inland Sunday and hammered Communist trenches, gun positions and command posts with more than 70 tons of shells.

The source said the three sailors were only slightly injured. He said the Wisconsin suffered only superficial damage to her superstructure.

There have been no reports of previous Communist hits on the big battleship.

Sabres Down Three MIGs

Seoul, Korea, Monday (AP)—U.S. Sabre jets shot down three Communist MIGs in flames Sunday, probably destroyed two others and damaged eight in three swirling dog fights.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force reported 71 Sabres patrolling "MIG Alley" high over northwest Korea were challenged by 130 of the Russian-built jets. It was the first series of jet battles in four days.

Allied fighters and bombers flew more than 500 sorties—mostly against Communist supply lines—after storms and a thick overcast had limited aerial strikes Friday and Saturday.

Author Held As Fingerwoman In Reno Burglary

Reno, Nev., (AP)—FBI agents yesterday arrested a woman in Flagstaff, Ariz., with $50,000 of the million and a half dollar Redfield burglary loot. Other agents pulled from an abandoned mineshaft near here the safe stolen from the L. V. Redfield home Feb. 29.

Mrs. Marie Jeanne D'Arc Machaud, arrested in Flagstaff after leaving the California Limited bound for Chicago, was the "fingerwoman" in the case, officers indicated. She is the sixth suspect under arrest—two women and four men.

Mrs. Machaud, 36, an artist and short story writer, had been a guest in the home of millionaire La Vere Redfield on several occasions they said.

When FBI agents picked her up, she had not only the $50,000 identified as Redfield loot, but also was carrying 28 pieces of jewelry and a thick packet of securities.

Some Progress Reported At Truce Talks

Munsan, Korea, Monday, (AP)—Allied and Communist negotiators made some headway Sunday on secondary ground rules for a Korean armistice. It wasn't much, but an Allied spokesman still rated it as "the most progress in two months."

New sessions were held 11 a. m. today at Panmunjom.

The harmonious tenor of Sunday's truce supervision meeting had its discordant counterpart in a blistering Communist note asking a "responsible" account of last Thursday's Kojima Island prison outbreak.

The note was delivered in the staff officer meeting on prisoner exchange. It quoted Gen. Nam Il, senior Red delegate: "Such barbarous massacres would not be further tolerated." Twelve North Korean prisoners were killed and 26 wounded in the outbreak between rival POW groups.

But in an adjoining tent, the Reds' tentative acceptance of the United Nations command "package" proposal on truce supervision was regarded as a significant step forward.

Stewardess Held For Killing Of Airline Executive

St. Louis (AP)—Suburban Overland police said a pretty, 20-year-old airline stewardess admitted shooting a superintendent of the company in a parked automobile yesterday.

Lawrence E. Kell, 43, superintendent of stations for Ozark Airlines, was found fatally wounded. Police Chief Browne Hairgrove identified the stewardess as Betty Lou Tracy. No warrant was issued immediately.

Chief Hairgrove said Miss Tracy signed a confession stating that she shot Kell with his own pistol after he threatened her during a quarrel over whether she associated with other men.

"I fired the gun until it would not fire any more," the chief quoted her as saying. She added, Hairgrove said, "All I heard him say was, 'No, Tracy. No, Tracy.'"

Police said Kell, who came here from Memphis, Tenn., March 1, was married.

Rebuffed In First Two Attempts To Purchase House, Hawaiian Couple Finally Meet Success

Des Moines, (AP)—A Hawaiian-born couple, who Saturday were given their down payment on a property and agreed to let the Nishimuras have it, saying:

"It's a nice place. We'd be glad to have it, but we're glad to let them have it after what they've been through."

The people of West Des Moines seemed to be unhappy at the injustice done the couple and the town's name by a few anonymous phone callers.

Bill Spaulding, a 24-year-old war veteran, said he was "very unhappy" about "any discrimination" and prepared to circulate a petition giving the Nishimuras a "vote of confidence."

Don Wissler, a next door neighbor to Robert Naert, owner of the property, said:

"There is quite an uprising in the neighborhood. Frankly we would like to have them occupy the house."

Only a few hours earlier, FBI men and Reno police pulled Redfield's battered green safe from a 35-foot shaft in the desolate Hot Springs area, 10 miles south of here.

Its door had been smashed off and it was stripped of valuables.

The mineshaft, surrounded by ruined mine workings, is on a rocky, sagebrush-covered ridge, well concealed from U. S. Highway 395, which passes a mile and a half away. Nearby, jets of steam issue from volcanic springs beneath the ground.

Speculation immediately began that one of the four men held for the Redfield burglary had been persuaded to talk. It was known that Louis (Frip) Gazzigli, 44, nabbed here Saturday, was intensively quizzed for several hours after his arrest.

With the arrest in Milwaukee, Wis., late Saturday night of John Trillegi, 37, and Frank Sorrenti, 36, two self-styled soap-salesmen, the FBI's case suddenly started taking form.

As of now, here's how the FBI script of the crime goes:

Trillegi, small-time Milwaukee hoodlum, and Gazzigli, a 230-pound ex-prizefighter and Reno gambling club bouncer with an extensive criminal record, joined forces here several weeks before the burglary.

Late in February they drove to Milwaukee, picking up Andries Robert Young, 46, ex-convict, and Sorrenti who has only a petty crime record.

The four returned here in Trillegi's grey 1951 Cadillac, arriving Feb. 27, two days before the burglary.

All four, charges the FBI, participated in the audacious daylight theft, carting away the 400-pound safe. The burglars entered the home during a two-hour period the occupants were gone. The noisy family watchdog was pacified with a hambone and the thieves went directly to the hidden loot.

The four men are charged at this point with transporting or conspiring to transport stolen property across state lines. These Federal charges carry penalties of five to 10 years in prison, compared to only one to five years provided for daylight burglary by Nevada law.

A second woman in the case, Mrs. Leona Mae Giordano, 38, Reno gambling girl and cocktail waitress now held at Los Angeles, is treated only sketchily in the FBI script.

But it was her blunder of trying to pass a "hot" $1,000 note from the loot that upset what at first appeared to be an unsolvable crime.

The FBI doesn't charge Mrs. Giordano with participating in the burglary.

Agents won't say where she got the original $1,000 bill, plus $5,000 more of the stolen currency found on her when she was arrested on Saturday at Los Angeles.

Mardi Gras Spirit Fades Away In Paris Because Of Years Of Strain, Wars

Editor's Note: Following is the twenty-first in a series of reports from Britain and Europe by Ruth Haller Ottaway, author of James H. Ottaway, publisher of The Daily Record. The writer is an experienced journalist and traveler and her reports from abroad in recent years have received a favorable reception by Record readers.

By Ruth Haller Ottaway

Paris—Mardi Gras means New Orleans to Americans, but our minds leap easily from its French traditions to Paris as a perfect place for merry-making. It was announced that the schools would be closed for Mardi Gras weekend. So we expected high carnival. Alas, not so! A writer in Le Figaro described the Riviera Mardi Gras at Nice where Americans and Scandinavians gathered, having left their igloos in their icy lands to play in the sun, and to watch the mammoth floats led by the "Roi de Joie" followed by beautiful "filles de joie," all flowers, confetti and fun. But in Paris the old custom had faded away with the years of strain and wars, and now only a straggling few youngsters played pranks and made faces. This melancholy, and apparently hungry Parisian dawned that a Bonaf (Bouff) would be more to the point.

In Nice unprecedented crowds and travelers from the world over enjoyed the many fetes of the "Carnaval" and especially the Battle of Flowers in pastel shades on the Promenade des Anglais. But the Anglaises were conspicuously absent, kept home by their restrictive 25 pounds ($70) of spending money for trips out of Britain.

Present were the rowdy practical jokers who sprayed numbing opiates from guns and victimized the unsuspecting. This form of gaiety was frowned upon by the police, battles with gags displacing pastel flowers.

In bomb-shattered Cologne the Rhineland went way in its traditional Rose Monday Carnival. Three thousands of Germans did drink, sing and dance amid showers of blossoms and colored streamers. The European Defense Army and German rearmament was the gay (?) theme of the carnival with mock officers giving orders in French, Italian, German, Luxembourgian, Belgian and Dutch!

You heard about Rio de Janeiro's quiet four-day carnival? It was much quieter this year. There were only five murders, a few dozen people run over, several killed, and one poisoned!

Then we have the nudists near Paris whose carnival is called "Gay Camping" in their magazine "Vie et Lumiere" (Life and Light). "From his tent he perceives the harmonies of nature. Smoothly he passes into the limbo of sleep and dreams, the ecstasies of Eden. He bounds up, leaves his tent, is dazzled by the light and knows the Pocono Lake — The Pilgrim Holiness church here will conduct special services from March 19 through March 23, Rev. J. A. Gangaware, pastor announced during the weekend.

Rev. Arthur Peisker, Indianapolis, Ind., office manager of the foreign missionary office of the Pilgrim Holiness church will present the world-wide interests of missions. Mr. Peisker is widely traveled and experienced in missionary work.

Rev. Thelma F. Parker, a graduate of Allentown Bible College, will be another featured speaker. Her work has centered around student groups, and her discussions will center around that theme.

These services will be held at 7:30 p.m. each day.

provincial dancers with Texas cow-boys, and Texas girls will wage the Battle of Flowers. (Surely blue-bonnets?) "A Star Spangled Gala" in Menton Casino, a gala dinner at Monte Carlo, and in the Beaulieu Casino "A Holiday Evening in Dallas" are only a few of the "Lone-Prarie-Riviera" festivals. Those croupiers at Monte Carlo are flexing their arms to rake in the shekels, and all of those charming Riviera towns suddenly have fallen in love with Texas. Watch that oil money, Lone Star!

On a cinema marquee in Paris we now see in high neon letters, "Dallas, the Frontier City."

What's that? Toy horns and laughter. There must be revelers abroad. Let's look out of the window. No, no one there. Just the old woman sitting in the lighted arcade selling newspapers.

It's a gay world! "Oh, tonight let's merry merry be. Tomorrow we'll be sober."

Attorneys For Beynon File Court Appeal

Harrisburg (AP)—The State Supreme court is expected to hear an appeal March 26 from a Scranton congressional candidate ruled off the April 22 primary ballot by a court decision.

The Dauphin county court last week threw out the nomination petitions of Daniel Beynon, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from the 10th district.

Milton J. Kolansky and Leo G. Knoll, Scranton attorneys for Beynon, filed the appeal Saturday with the Supreme court prothonotary here. Kolansky said he was told the hearing probably would be heard by the high court on the third day of its Pittsburgh session.

Judge Homer L. Kreider of the Dauphin county court ruled that 50 of Beynon's 236 signatures on his nomination petitions were illegal. At least 200 are required by the State elections code.

Kolansky said he would base his appeal on a re-hearing granted by Judge Kreider. The petitions were opposed by Nelson Nichols, Scranton, another GOP candidate.

Funeral services for Walter G. Garland, 508 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg were held Saturday afternoon in the William H. Clark funeral home.

Rev. J. Leon Durnham, pastor of Bethel AME church, conducted services.

Interment was made in Stroudsburg cemetery. Pallbearers were Ivan Adams, John Beville, Neville Weaver, James Jubeverke, Wallace De Berry and Williams Thompson.

In 1771 when newspapers first began comprehensive reporting of the debates in the English Parliament, the Parliament attempted to halt the practice and even had the lord mayor of London arrested for refusal to honor warrants against printers.

All letters to The Editor must be signed with a bona fide address given. Such signatures and addresses will be withheld if the writer desires.

Dear Editor,
I wish to clear up some mistaken impression that I seem to have made in the minds of some people due to the recent publicity.

The Hamilton Township School Board accepted an invitation from the Chestnut-Hill-Ross Township School Board to listen to facts and figures about a possible jointure with them. I am just as interested in what advantages and disadvantages a Stroudsburg jointure would be and I understand that Mr. Groener has spoken to a member of the board that they would like to talk to us. The children of Hamilton Township have for years used the fine facilities and teachers of Stroudsburg High School and I do not advocate changing that system unless there is absolute proof that educationally and financially it would be to our mutual advantage.

I asked the Civic League to make a study or survey in all directions including that of remaining as we are now operating, not just a Chestnut-Hill-Ross study. I feel that citizens should understand and discuss constructively help to solve such a vital problem, that is why I wish to talk to PTA meetings, Civic League meeting or any other group that wish to discuss school problems.

At a conference recently in Harrisburg it was clearly pointed out

Two Fraternity Pledges Dumped Out Of Car At Tobyhanna, Left On Own Resources To Hitchhike Back To Philadelphia

The institution of brotherly love turned out to be strictly a long distance proposition for two Philadelphia fraternity pledges over the weekend.

The two young men—Henry Schreiber and Sid Venitsky, students at Philadelphia Textile Institute in the "city of brotherly love"—were pledged to Sigma Phi Tau fraternity at the school. They were getting final touches from a week of "hazing" by their future fraternity brothers.

As a part of this "hazing" Schreiber and Venitsky had been blindfolded and loaded into a car in Philadelphia, they said, and driven away. They were let out of the car near Tobyhanna—nearly 120 miles from the fraternity house—with ill-fitting clothes and no money.

This was around midnight Friday. At 4 a. m. the two boys had made their way as far down as the Colonial diner in Stroudsburg by hitching rides with passing truck drivers.

At the Colonial, Schreiber and Venitsky reflected on their hazardous journey for the benefit of a reporter.

Schreiber, a tall, husky young man from Quebec, did most of the talking. As preparation for the "ride," he said, the pledges had been soundly paddled and put through a "dye bath" which left purple, red and blue streaks on their faces, arms, hands and legs.

The final instruction from the driver of the car, just before Schreiber was released, was, he said: "Soon as I drop you off, count to five, tear off the blindfold and start to run after the car." Schreiber got out, he said, and tore off the blindfold. He didn't count all the way to five. A short distance up the road he found Venitsky.

Both of the boys expected to find money in their pockets. They had taken great pains to hide a certain amount of money in the sides of the cars in which they were to ride. Venitsky had put a couple of bills in the lining of his jacket.

Schreiber had pulled what he thought was "money" out of the crack between the seat and the side of the car. When he looked at it, however, he discovered the bills had been replaced by paper.

Things might not have been so

Police Jail Two Men, Seize Loaded Pistol After Alleged Threat Against Third Man

Police confiscated a loaded pistol and jailed two Stroudsburg men Saturday after one allegedly threatened to shoot Argus Walters of East Stroudsburg.

Russell Elbert, 44, of 6 Stoflet St., Stroudsburg, was charged with threatening bodily harm to Walters.

His companion, Louis H. Walters, 29, of the same address, a boiler maker, was charged with carrying firearms without a license and with intent to commit bodily harm to Walters.

The two will face hearings today at 11 a. m. before Justice of the Peace Herbert G. Bonser, East Stroudsburg, with police of that borough as prosecuting officers.

The fracas began at a lunchroom at 110 Brown St., East Stroudsburg, Saturday night. The three men were reported to have argued about a woman. Finally Walters was quoted as saying, "Let's forget about this thing and have no more trouble—and I'll leave."

To which Elbert reportedly answered, "No you don't. If you leave, I'll shoot you."

Walters stayed where he was until police arrived at 8:40 p. m. Borough officers reported they frisked the two and relieved Walters of the pistol, which was in his hip pocket.

The weapon was loaded with six .22 longs. The two men were taken before Justice Bonser, then committed to the county jail.

A complication in the case is that Argus Walters is now under deferred sentencing on a disorderly conduct charge pressed by Elbert and a woman friend, Leona Heller.

Justice Bonser is also handling the latter case.

It grew out of a disturbance Wednesday night at an East Stroudsburg funeral home where a viewing was taking place.

Leona Heller and Elbert attended the viewing together. Walters showed up later and an argument ensued. Mrs. Heller and Elbert later went to Justice Bonser and pressed the disorderly conduct charge against Walters.

Fire Damages Upper Part Of Dwelling

Tobyhanna — A fire at 2:30 p. m. Saturday gutted the top floor of the home of Peter Van Horn on Route 490 near the Signal Depot.

The Van Horn family lives in one-half of a double house owned by Jacob Cramer. The second half of the house is occupied by Mrs. Martha Christianman.

When the Coolbaugh Township Volunteer Fire Co. arrived at the home, Mrs. Christianman had succeeded in getting most of her furniture out of the house with the help of neighbors.

The fire was brought under control before it could spread to the bottom floor of the house. An estimated $400 damage was done to furnishings owned by the Van Horns.

Cause of the fire was believed to be a faulty chimney.

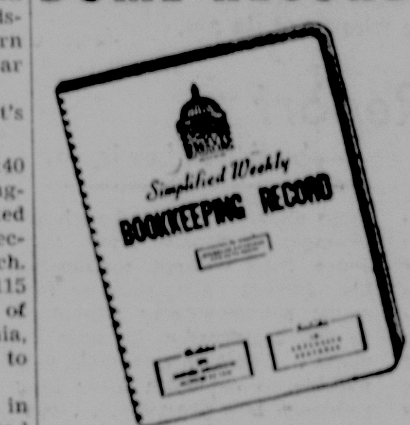

To produce 27 pounds of nickel, 2,000 pounds of ore must be mined and processed.

Lessons For Givers

As the annual campaign of the American Red Cross moves towards a close, with Monroe and its contiguous counties seeking to wind up the usual successful request for funds whereby the Red Cross carries on its wonderful work, a lesson for givers has been spelled out by the thousand men who are the soldier-inmates of the New Cumberland Disciplinary Barracks.

For these men have organized their own Red Cross drive, of their own volition and with no high-pressure salesmanship from the Army officers controlling the barracks, and are filling out their pledge blanks in order to have a part in the annual campaign.

The spirit of these men, who for one reason or another have fallen afoul of the regulations of the service in which they wore the uniform, is one that might well be adopted by many others who live the lives of free men and who are not paying a price for their failure to abide by the rules.

For the men of the disciplinary barracks draw no pay during the period of their sentences, and any money they contribute to the Red Cross must come from funds held in individual accounts.

One might think that prisoners in the stockades could be embittered to the point of refusing to have anything to do with such a voluntary campaign. Yet these men know the great service rendered to both military and civilian citizens, and they are determined that they shall have a part in maintaining that service.

It is, mostly assuredly, a wonderful lesson for all of us, and one that we may ponder as we fill out the pledges during this Red Cross month, and learn about the many ways in which the great organization has helped and is continuing to help all those who need its aid.

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Washington—Three justices of the United States Supreme court are continuing their giddy disregard for the fact that Communism is a danger to the United States.

They are Justices Douglas, Black and Frankfurter, three exponents of the so-called Liberalism that was captured by the Communists at the beginning of the late President Roosevelt's New Deal.

Beginning with its refusal to upset the conviction of Alger Hiss, the Supreme court has been forced on several occasions to face the issue of Communism versus security in the U. S. To the everlasting relief of the nation, the court majority has handled current Communist issues to the benefit of the USA. There had been some doubt whether it would.

But the court's three dwarfs of intellectuality have displayed a rigidity of reason that reduces them to the level of political trained seals. They have objected to majority decisions approving firing of school teachers who are Communists, deporting aliens who are Communists, jailing without bail Red aliens who are a danger to the nation's security, and jailing of Communist lawyers who show contempt for the nation's legal tribunal.

Several of these recent court decisions have been by 6 to 3 votes. The three dwarfs usually are on the same dissenting side. It's a disgusting display that has no basis in legal conclusions.

For instance, Black and Douglas argued that it is improper to deport aliens for past membership in the Communist party, on grounds that this deprived them of their constitutional right.

Now, an alien has no rights guaranteed him by the Constitution but he is protected by certain statutes which allow him certain privileges, providing he behaves properly, and nobody could ever make me see any merit in the Black-Douglas thesis that an alien can be a Communist and still be regarded as behaving properly.

Here, two of the three dwarfs had the temerity to argue that although the Communist aliens involved had been in this country for more than 30 years without becoming citizens, it was illegal to deport them. Justice Jackson, writing the majority opinion, summed up the thinking of most Americans when he said:

"For over 30 years each these aliens has enjoyed such advantages as accrue from residence here without renouncing his foreign allegiance or formally acknowledging adherence to the Constitution he now invokes . . . that aliens remain vulnerable to expulsion after long residence is a practice . . . confirmed by international law as a power inherent in every sovereign state."

To this, the dissenters replied that either the Supreme court or the Congress is in error in not changing the law to avoid the distasteful — to them — duty of making our visiting Communists either fish or cut bait.

The Communist movement in the U. S. is heavily laced with aliens who sought the sanctuary of our freedoms but are unwilling to help keep those freedoms. Why should they be sheltered here any longer, helping to finance the Communists and aiding them in espionage and propaganda?

In the ruling that now allows U. S. courts to jail known Communist aliens until they are deported, the argument in opposition was that allowing the Muscovite stooges to run at large would not put the nation in any immediate jeopardy.

The three dwarfs—joined, this time, by Justice Harold Burton—acted as though they had never heard of Gerhart Eisler. He was sprung out of jail on bail, and promptly fled the country with a bundle of U. S. military secrets. There are several hundred just like him still at large. Now the FBI can start rounding them up again, but it will cost more money and our security will be endangered until they are caught. The three dwarfs act as though these are minor matters, and would allow them to continue running loose.

The high court must of necessity disagree on legal interpretations of the various laws passed by Congress, but on a legal basis. All the three dwarfs do or have done is holler "foul" on a bleeding heart basis whenever a Communist is nabbed in a dragnet.

Not All Outgo

In these troubled times of mounting and burdensome taxes, it is mighty pleasant to read of a department of our commonwealth to which is returned a considerable amount of the funds it expends, funds provided from your taxes and utilized in the state's public assistance program.

During 1951, the Department of Public Assistance reported this week, a total of $3,346,000 was recovered, and even in these days of astronomical sums banded about so blithely in Washington, that total represents a lot of tax dollars.

No doubt you read about the way it works, with the department attaching a lien to all real property owned by each person granted public assistance, and receiving the amount of the assistance grants when the property is sold.

So as our taxpayers learn that some quarter of a million dollars is being recovered each month by the department, it is a bright spot in the overall picture which at times has been a gloomy one indeed.

That but 20 per cent. of all persons receiving public assistance own real property closes the door to recovery from the majority of those on the rolls, but the Pennsylvania taxpayer is thankful for any blessings he may receive through this recovery and is not inclined to complain too bitterly about the other, non-property-owning persons.

All in all, the story is one that must be received generally with appreciative regard, and if the department can find a way to recover even greater sums from those whose period of want has been aided by the state it will be even better news.

Copper was the first metal used by man.

Broadway and Elsewhere

—By Jack Laht

New York — I noted with quite satisfaction the other day that the Boys of McSorley's gave a party recently for a 90-year-old outtime boiler-maker named John Kelly, who has been jaunting McSorley's for 70 years.

It has been many years since I soaked up a jug of ale at the old place, down in Seventh street off Cooper Square, but it is nice to know it still exists—likely the last saloon in Manhattan where no woman can enter.

You have no idea what quiet peacefulness a place like that can bring. Outside of locking yourself in the bathroom, which after all is a chill and medicinal-appearing place, there is just about no spot in town where you can get away from the gabble of the ladies. You are safe in the bar of the Plaza until 5 p. m. and later in the men's bar of the Biltmore before its comparatively early closing, but McSorley's is the one place where you can relax and call somebody a nasty name or conduct an argument with calm detachment—as we men always do, in contrast to females.

McSorley's has had this firm but gentle barrier against women in all of its 98 years of existence. As near as I can recall, only two dames ever were served there. One was a slightly teched old peddler named Mother Fresh-Roasted, who used to sell peanuts that she carried in her apron, to habitués of saloons on the lower East Side. John McSorley, founded the place, used to sell her ale on warm days; to all other women he would bow politely and say "Madam, I'm sorry, but we don't serve ladies."

The other woman who was served was a Greenwich village feminist, who in 1924 came in the place in pants, topcoat and cap, with a cigar in her mouth, and ordered and drank an ale.

Then, and only then she removed her cap and shook her long hair down on her shoulders, yelled something about the equality of the sexes and ran out—leaving Bill McSorley, the old man's son, who sold her the drink, to moan and jump up and down shouting "She was a woman! She was a woman!"

I guess McSorley's is about the only saloon in America that has had a book written about it. It intrigued Joe Mitchell so much a few years ago that he turned out "McSorley's Wonderful Saloon," as a kind of loving tribute. Mitchell seemed most fascinated by the smell in the old place, which he described as "a rich compound of the smells of pine sawdust, tap drippings, pipe tobacco, coal smoke, and onions." "A Bellevue interne once said that for many mental disturbances the smell in McSorley's is more beneficial than psychoanalysis," Joe declared.

It also must be the only—or, at the least, one of the few—saloon to be painted by a major American artist. The late John Sloan, in the years between 1912 and 1930, did five paintings of the old ale house, one of which hangs in the Detroit Institute of Arts. These paintings have sent a number of art-loving hootfooting over to McSorley's to see the old place in the flesh, whereupon Kelly the Floorwalker used to tell them (still tells them, if he's still there) "Hey Mac, if you want to see some real art, go

Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis

We are leaving for the Azalea Festival in Mobile, Ala., in the morning, so I guess my mind wasn't quite on what I read.

You know how it is when you go on a trip with your wife.

What shoes to take? What hats to wear? What grips to pack? Where is the aspirin?

A wife can think of a thousand things to take on a trip. It's really quite awful.

However, there is one nice thing about it.

It reminds me of a cartoon I saw in a magazine a few days ago.

The husband was sitting in his easy chair, reading the newspaper.

The wife was kneeling down in front of a suitcase that wouldn't close.

The caption read: "I require some of your special talent, George. Would you mind sitting on this?"

Yes, I think if it weren't for the wives, many a suitcase would forever remain unpacked.

But back to my subject. A headline confronted me in my morning paper today.

"How wonderful," I said to look at the naked lady in the back room."

Kelly was an important figure in McSorley's, in my days of downtown pub-crawling, and I hope he is there yet, as a kind of amateur m.c. of the place. For years and years just for kicks, he used to stand at the door and shake hands with incomers, some of whom used to think he was McSorley himself. Kelly was a night clerk in a funeral parlor until a corpse spoke to him one night. "This dead feller looked up at me and told me to take my hat off indoors," Kelly said in explaining why he quit.

The Boys of McSorley's are 52

Consumer Credit —The great productive capacity of the United States has to a large degree been built up by an economic process called variously "consumer credit," or "installment buying." This is a method of purchasing in advance of saving, so that the consumer is actually in possession of the commodity and able to use it while he is paying for it.

For instance, if a family waited until it had accumulated enough money to buy an automobile, it might never have bought one. The money might have been spent or dissipated. In a word, consumer credit is a practical form of savings. The individual "saves" commodities instead of cash.

Throughout the years of the Depression, it was found that the losses on this type of business were negligible. The consumer paid as best he could, sometimes delaying payments but in the end paying. This experience over bad years encouraged an increasing number of businesses to accept consumer credit as a sound process.

In August, 1941, the Government entered upon active control of consumer credit and delegated the function to the Federal Reserve System, which issued "Regulation W," and entered upon the business of licensing firms engaging in this process. The Federal Reserve System policies installment buying, installment loans, consumer credit—whatever you call it.

The Federal Reserve decides the terms and nature of consumer credit and thereby is a factor not only in the final price paid (which includes interest on the borrowed money) but the velocity of the movement of goods.

For instance, it was decided that 15 per cent is to be the down payment on such items as radios, television, vacuum cleaners, furniture, refrigerators, etc.; 33 and one third per cent is down payment on new automobiles.

All consumer credit payments must be completed in 18 months. The creditor has no option. Let us say that the breadwinner of a family dies and his widow comes to the creditor and asks for three months' grace to straighten out her affairs. The creditor may be willing to grant the extension because he is a decent, fine person and not a Shylock.

But the Federal Reserve intervenes and demands what is, in effect, a pauper's oath. The individual has to swear to the revised state of his life. All human relations are eliminated. The widow can no longer go about saying what a fine man Mr. Smith is—he let her off the hook for three months. Smith can now only give her a paper to fill out and sign.

The piece of paper is a one-sheet document, mimeographed on two sides. First comes an explanation which requires a legal adviser because it has all kinds of unclear words.

Then comes "Record of Action Taken"—(It's to be filled in and signed by the Registrant if a renewal, revision, consolidation, or refinancing is granted on the basis of this Statement of Changed Conditions.)

Then, on the other side, comes "Statement of Changed Conditions."

The "Registrant" is the term used for an American who is buying goods on installments agreed upon in a seller-buyer relationship. I will cite an example:

"My husband and I were both employed and able to pay $26.00 per month. Due to pregnancy, I am unable to work. Our source of income is $32.00 per week. I can only pay $18.00 per month."

The seller would surely have granted the extension, but he might have got some good will out of it. But no! It must be a cold transaction.

I have examined, confidentially, of course, a large number of documents. How I got hold of them, I may not say because my source says that it would bring great hardships to the businesses involved.

The interesting fact is that most of the businesses involved in consumer credit do not want "Regulation W" continued. They do not want the pauper's oath. They prefer a restoration of human relations between buyer and seller. They have actually organized themselves into "The National Foundation for Consumer Credit" to oppose the extension of this "Regulation W" which expires on June 30, 1952.

This is one of many measures for the control of the people by the government. For it the only evidence can be that the people fail to pay. There is no statistical data to prove that Americans have welched on their obligations of this type.

When I was taken for a ride in a new jet plane at Eglin Field, Florida, recently, the pilot didn't make me any happier by explaining, "If we have to bail out, just press this red button. You and the seat will go sailing out together. Then count ten and pull this strap."

Fortunately this program, which struck me as somewhat drastic, never had to be executed. Back on terra firma, the pilot explained that you couldn't parachute out of a jet plane in the old way because you were going too darn fast; the rush of air would do you in before the parachute could be opened. One pilot, he added, had to abandon his craft in Korea.

Hollywood — That gung poking around all the many departments at Paramount these days is Bill Holden. The actor's only hobby is finding out all he can about the many sides of the movie business.

From art directors he's learning about lenses, apertures, and camera angles. Technician people have taught him it's bad to cut from a bright red to a bright blue—gives the viewer a subconscious jolt.

Bill patters around the studio's gun department, one of the largest collection of firearms west of the Mississippi. But his biggest recreation is the music department and the scoring stages where orchestras dub in background music while the film shows up on a large screen.

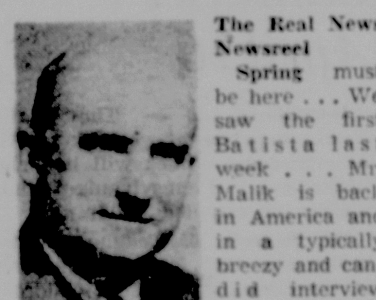

Bill told why: "This acting is a very unnatural business. You come in, in the morning, and maybe in your first scene you have to get mad."

"You're shooting the adrenalin in there. And maybe by the end of the day you say you'll never go on another set the rest of your life."

"The next day you come in and you go on the recording stage and listen to some wonderful music from Franz Waxman or Victor Young. Talent you'd pay $4.40 to hear at the Philharmonic. And after a while you feel restored."

Bill recently signed a 14-year contract with his studio. He hasn't any particular goal for that period, however:

"I just want the thing to be a constant challenge—new and different parts. And to know more

Girl Scouts Give Gifts At County Birthday Party

The Girl Scout county-wide rally, held Saturday morning in the East Stroudsburg Junior High school, brought together Brownies, Intermediates and Senior Girl Scouts and their leaders and parents to celebrate the birthday of their founder, Juliette Low, and the 40th anniversary of Girl Scouting itself.

With Mrs. Camille Harvey, executive director, and the leaders in charge, the girls presented dances, songs and games typical of the 21 countries to which their World Friendship gifts will go. Juliette Low representatives from each troop presented the gift of their troop, putting them in the miniature chalet, a replica of the Girl Scout Friendship house in Switzerland.

Dr. Madelon Power and the members of the Juliette Low committee, representing the various troops, were in charge of the presentation of the gift of money and sewing kits for Girl Scouts and Guides abroad.

Mrs. Harold C. Edwards, president of the county council, presided at the burning of the fourth $500 bond on the Girl Scout House, the gifts of the girls themselves toward their house. They made most of the money through cookie sales, with an added gift from Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Weiss. This makes $2,000 which the girls have paid off on their house indebtedness.

After group songs, led by Mrs. Roger Acker, the members made a double friendship circle and "Taps" were sung, with echoes in German and French from selected groups.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Maybe the March wind swept your house bare of heat yesterday and set the curtains swaying—but anyway the Girl Scout leaders could look back on a heartwarming experience at the rally on Saturday.

Officers, working on problems of finance and registration isolated from the girls themselves; leaders always lively, often inattentive, perhaps—both could take fresh heart. That was a pretty impressive spectacle.

The camping committee, on the other hand, meeting on wind-bitten Mosier's Knob yesterday afternoon to inspect the camp building and discuss finishing it up—merely looked cold. But that they care that much is a heartwarming thought.

There are lots of people working on worthy projects, hereabouts, and there's rumors of an attempt to start a Sororists Club here, which, as I understand it, is a sort of female Rotary service club.

A glance at the social calendar these days, and I'd despair of getting another organization in with a shoe-horn. However, there's still Saturday morning, and a couple of breakfast meetings open.

I mention the incident now only to show you once again how alert our Wyckoff buyers are. On Saturday, I was leafing through a back issue of Women's Wear Daily, the newspaper by which retailers keep in constant touch with the whims of fashion, when I chanced upon a picture of the newest jewelry creations for the season ahead. Focal point of the display was the same ornament Edna had brought home. But the date on the newspaper was Friday, March 11 . . . and the Wyckoff jewelry buyer had placed her order one day earlier, Thursday, March 13. No ballerina can surpass that for being on her toes!

Howdy Folks!

If you've been one of the many unfortunate persons to fall victim to this virus bug that's going around, you've probably made a visit to an old and dependable friend.

We're talking about your family doctor. It's a comfortable feeling to know he's always around when you need him. It's such a comforting feeling that we get to depend on him more than we realize.

It's the same way, in another respect, with family photographers. It's a nice feeling for a photographer when people have faith in him and his work. A family photographer can take a similar place in your life, just as the family doctor does. He becomes familiar with your needs and takes a personal interest in you and your family.

As you know, there are two of us who work behind the cameras at our studio. But just as you choose your favorite family doctor, you can also choose your favorite family photographer.

Repairs All Types Of Furniture

Restoring the luster of time-worn antiques has become one of the busiest aspects of Cabinet Maker Donald Tinney's youthful but thriving business.

In business for himself since last October, the young craftsman also specializes in all types of furniture repairs and the planning and construction of all types of custom cabinets and furniture.

Working from his modern shop at 1128 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, Mr. Tinney offers free estimates on all built-in work. He makes no charge for pick-up and delivery if the call is within a 35-mile radius.

Antiques that are to be restored are completely repaired first before the job is even begun. They are cleaned entirely... down to the bare wood, and a new finish is put back on in any color desirable.

Mr. Tinney notes the new finish is usually alcohol-proof and heat-proof.

"When an antique is finished in our shop," Mr. Tinney points out, "its monetary value is usually doubled."

The Tinney shop handles all types of furniture repair work, except extensive upholstery renovation.

In the custom-made line, Mr. Tinney specializes in bedroom and dining room furniture.

For homeowners who want to give their furniture added beauty and lasting protection, Mr. Tinney handles a special lemon-oil polish. He especially recommends it for antiques.

To all homeowners interested in cutting their costs on home maintenance, Mr. Tinney advises it's best to have repair work done as soon as possible.

"The longer repair work is put off, the longer the job and the greater the cost," Mr. Tinney explained.

Paint Alligators For Two Reasons

If a painted surface shows signs of "alligatoring" or checking, it is probably due to one of two causes: either the undercoat was covered before it was quite dry or it was mixed with too much oil or an inferior grade of oil. To prevent such an occurrence use only the best quality paint and allow each coat time to dry completely before the next is applied. There is no remedy for extreme cases of alligatoring except to have a skilled painter burn off the impaired coating and repaint.

THE RICH-LOOKING and distinctive grain of mahogany is brought out in all its lustre in this custom-made dining room suite fashioned by Cabinet Maker Donald Tinney. This charming suite represents only one aspect of the young craftsman's creative talents. Constructed in his modern shop at 1128 N. Fifth St., the suite now graces the dining room of a Stroudsburg home. Mr. Tinney also devotes much of his business to the creation of custom bedroom furniture, furniture repairs and antique restoring.

Philadelphia (AP)—The Sons of Erin honored their patron, St. Patrick, yesterday with a wind-swept parade through the heart of the city.

Bedecked in various styles of uniforms of shamrock green the 20,000 marchers braved the bitter weather to honor the memory of the founder of their ancestors' native land.

A city official in charge of parade arrangements estimated the crowd along the line of march at 75,000.

The city's main streets were closed to automobile traffic to permit the marchers a chance to keep moving.

Like Assessments Don't Always Indicate Similar Market Values

(This is the sixteenth in a series of articles based on actual real estate sales in boroughs and townships and the amounts at which those properties were assessed. Figures were taken from official county records.)

By Leonard Randolph

Three Pocono township properties were assessed at $1,400 each following their sale in 1951. One of these properties had a market value of only $3,500; the second sold for $11,000, and the third for a whopping $21,000. Yet all three properties, with apparent disregard for their sale price, were assessed at exactly the same amount.

The inequity of assessment placement in Pocono township is reflected throughout a study of the 31 sales made during 1951 for which assessment figures are currently available.

During the year, for example, three Pocono township properties were assessed at $1,200 each. One of the three sold for $7,500; another at $9,500 and the third at $12,500.

The inequalities in such assessments are apparent. Since the assessed value of a property is supposedly related to the market value of the property it would seem that the assessments on two properties—one selling for $21,000 and the other at only $3,500—should be slightly different. In Pocono township last year, there was no established difference—both were assessed at $1,400 (see second paragraph, above).

Pocono township's sales during January were assessed at amounts varying from 13 to 25 per cent of the property values. Assessed at 13 per cent of its market value was a $9,500 Henryville Rd. house. Assessment—$1,200.

An $11,500 Tannersville house was assessed at $2,000 or 17 per cent of its market value; a $7,500 commercial property in Tannersville was assessed at $1,800 or 24 per cent and a $20,000 Pocono Manor cottage was assessed at $5,000 or 25 per cent of the market value.

In February a $10,000 house was assessed at only $300. This established a low assessment percentage for 1951—only 3 per cent of the market value.

Other assessments set during February were: a $5,000 Henryville RD farm, assessed at $800 or 16 per cent; a $10,000 cottage, assessed at $2,500 or 25 per cent; an $11,000 tract of land (160 acres), assessed at $1,400 or 13 per cent; an $8,500 house, assessed at $2,000 or 24 per cent and a $12,000 Pocono Manor summer cottage, assessed at $4,000 or 33 per cent of the market value.

During the three-month period April, May and June, assessments were set at percentages ranging from 10 to 50 per cent of the market value of individual properties sold. Assessed at the low of 10 per cent were three properties: a $16,000 house, assessed at $1,600; an $8,000 Henryville RD house, assessed at $800 and a $4,000 tract of land near Tannersville, assessed at $400.

A $4,500 house was assessed at $500 or 11 per cent of its value. Selling for $3,000 a Tannersville tract was assessed at $400 or 13 per cent of its value while a $1,000 lot, assessed at $150 was set at 15 per cent.

Two Pocono township properties were assessed at 20 per cent of their individual market value during the three-month period: both were $500 tracts of land, assessed at $100.

The "high" percentage was set for the three months when a $2,000 Tannersville house was assessed at $1,000, exactly 50 per cent of its market value.

Two sales made during July show recorded assessments on county records. The first of these was a $12,500 Tannersville property, assessed at $1,200 or 9 per cent of its value; the second was a $7,500 house, also assessed at $1,200 or 16 per cent of its value.

During September a Pocono township couple paid $4,000 for a 58-acre tract of land. Their newly-acquired property was assessed at $2,400 or 60 per cent of the sale price—an assessment percentage which established a high for the year.

Three Pocono township properties, sold during the closing months of the year, were assessed at a flat 17 per cent of their value. The first was a $12,000 Pocono Manor house, assessed at $2,100; the second a $6,000 Tannersville house, assessed at $1,000 and the third an $18,000 house, assessed at $3,000.

Although these three assessments showed a measure of equality, the remaining assessments did not. A $21,000 Tannersville house, for example, sold during the same time period, was assessed at $1,400 or 7 per cent. An $18,000 cottage, on the other hand, was assessed at $1,800 or 27 per cent of its value. The latter house was located at Pocono Manor.

In the paragraph immediately preceding, it will be noted that a $21,000 house was assessed at $1,400, one of the three lowest assessment percentages set during the year. While the man who owns the property on which this assessment was set has every reason to feel that he is fortunate, a second Pocono township property owner whose assessment was set at the same amount, has sufficient reason (according to the records) to be dissatisfied with his lot.

This dissatisfaction might conceivably grow from the fact that the second property owner paid only $3,500 for his house. This means that a house which sold at one-seventh the price of a far more expensive home was assessed at exactly the same amount. The $3,500 house was assessed at 40 per cent of its value while the $21,000 house was assessed at only 7 per cent. A $1,500 house in Stroud, meanwhile, was assessed at $100 or 6 per cent of its market value; a $2,500 house was assessed at $300 or 12 per cent and an $18,000 cottage at Pocono Manor was assessed at $4,800 or 27 per cent of its value.

Only one apparent "extreme" case is listed in Pocono township for the year 1951. This was a lot in Swiftwater which sold for $500 and was assessed at $750.

There is sufficient indication that the property transfer was made between members of the same family so that consideration of the 150 per cent assessment as a part of the actual percentage picture in Pocono would be invalid.

This picture, as the reader may find through a summarization of the material contained in this article, was one of wide disparity. The disparity has occurred consistently in almost every Monroe county borough and township. Pocono was no exception.

Percentage-wise the assessments ranged from a low of 3 per cent to a high of 60. These were divided into the following per cent brackets: one at 3; one at 6; one at 7; one at 9; three at 10; one at 11; one at 12; two at 13; one at 15; two at 16 four at 17; one at 20; one at 24; one at 25; one at 27; one at 33; one at 40; one at 50; one at 60 per cent of market value.

The assessment percentages set during the year 1951 for Pocono township averaged 18 per cent, on the basis of $22,500 in sales and a total assessed value of $45,000.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

La Salle's Cinderella cage machine Saturday night drove out of Madison Square Garden in a pumpkin chariot, pulled by a band of loyal rooters who stuck with the Explorers despite the fact that the so-called experts throughout the land refused to concede the Philadelphia point producers a chance in the fifteenth annual National Invitation Tournament. The Explorers had just taken the measure of Dayton, 75-64, in a game during which the charges of Coach Ken Loeffler "froze" the ball for the greater part of the final round, or they would have run up many more points.

The Explorers, one of the last to be admitted to the NIT and unwanted by the NCAA, caught the fancy of the large following of basketball fans in the athletic capital, when more than 18,000 people screamed themselves hoarse while watching the Quaker City quiet down Seton Hall in the opening game of the tournament for both teams, 80-76. Experts all down the line referred to the La Salle-Seton Hall contest as one of the greatest in the history of New York's Eighth Ave. sports palace.

Even though the students of the small school located at 20th St. and Olney Ave., a long set-shot from Philadelphia's famed N. Broad St., upset the Pirates, they again were reported ready to take it on the chin against St. John's, in last Monday's tilt, but again the Explorers upset the dope by bringing home the bacon, 51-45. The Philadelphiaans were riding high at this point, but those who supposedly know maintained that the end was in sight last Thursday, when the Olney artists tangled with Duquesne.

The Dukes, with only one setback all season, had taken La Salle into camp earlier in the campaign, by a margin of 31 points, and the Philadelphiaans were in for more of the same—so they said. All the Explorers proceeded to do was humiliate the Dukes in front of a full house, 59-46, dealing the Pittsburgh club a blow from which it failed to recover last Saturday.

After watching the Explorers down Duquesne, the "know-it-alls" finally saw the hand writing on the wall and quickly named La Salle to defeat Dayton in the final round—the first right choice the so-called experts made in the tournament, as Dayton too reached the final round despite the fact that it was very lightly regarded at the beginning of the tournament. It was a great uphill fight for the Explorers, with every member of the club right out of the Philadelphia district. The current enrollment at La Salle is something like 1,800 making it the smallest college in this year's NIT.

La Salle, in addition to winning team honors in the tournament, also featured the tournament's most valuable players, an honor that usually goes to the winning contingent. This year it was freshman Tom "Goggle" Gola and junior Norm Grekin who shared the honors. However, I believe that the La Salle cage machine also included on its roster the most "overlooked" player too—in the person of "Jumping Jack" Moore, one of the best college basketball performers these weak eyes have ever beheld.

Although I was fortunate to see only two games played by the Explorers in the tournament, I believe his play was even more responsible for the four victories by the Philadelphiaans than that of Gola and Grekin, although both of these youngsters played great basketball. I believe the fact that Loeffler gave Moore the task of halting the opposition's big gun in each game is proof of the former Overbrook High student's ability.

The six foot, five inch sophomore, while not a prolific scorer, came through with several clutch field goals that enabled La Salle to shake off momentary slumps and go on to win. Moore's job of handling Wally Dukes, Seton Hall, in the opening encounter will never be forgotten by those on hand, and the showing put on by Moore, with the aid of a collapsing defense, against Don "Monk" Meineke on Saturday must go down as one of the top defensive jobs in history. This same Moore held Duquesne's great Dick Rickerts to seven points and against St. John's the La Salle sophomore kept Bob Zawoluk well in bounds.

Freshman Fred Ichle was also outstanding, as was the spot playing of Newt Jones and Jack French. Coach Loeffler paced the floor in front of his bench in the late minutes of the Seton Hall game, trying desperately to substitute the right man for one of his front line troops, who just fouled out of the ball game. Ken, unable to make up his mind, apparently took the advice of his players and sent Ed Altieri into the battle, after the other subs on the bench pointed to number 12. The choice was right and Ed played the late portions of the remaining games. Nothing but the highest praise can be handed out to Captain Charley Donnelly, his floor play and leadership. In general—today should be a happy St. Patrick's Day in Olney.

Stroudsburg Bows In First Round Of VFW Tournament

SECOND BEST—Dayton University, soundly defeated in the final game of the National Invitation Tournament by La Salle on Saturday, will try its luck in the NCAA Tournament beginning on Friday. Dayton's first five, shown in a clockwise manner above, is composed of, beginning at the extreme left, Don "Monk" Meineke, Pete Boyle, John Horan, Charley Grigsby and Leland Norris.

Dayton, Thoroughly Beaten By LaSalle In NIT Finale, Set To Launch Bid For NCAA Title

By Hugh Fullerton Jr.

New York, (AP)—The youthful La Salle Explorers, largely overlooked by the experts who rank the college basketball teams and ignored by the ones who seeded the teams for the National Invitation tournament, are the first to qualify for the 1952 Olympic tryouts.

Victorious over Dayton's Tall Flyers, 75 to 64, in the final of the NIT Saturday, La Salle will come back here March 29 to open the Olympic eliminations against the runner-up in the National Collegiate A. A. tournament.

At the same time, Southwest Missouri State of Springfield will face the NCAA champion in a first-round Olympic test at Kansas City. Springfield earned its place a couple of hours after La Salle with a 73-64 triumph over Murray (Ky.) State in the final of the grueling, week-long NAIB tournament.

The NCAA tournament, which gets under way Friday at four locations, will produce two teams for the college half of the Olympic draw. And oddity, three of the contenders for this title are teams that bowed to La Salle in the NIT competition. Four other Olympic contenders will come from this week's national AAU championship at Denver.

Second Chances

Dayton, a thoroughly beaten finalist in the NIT; Duquesne, trounced by La Salle, 59-46 in the semi-finals, and St. John's of Brooklyn, beaten 51-45 in the second round, all were NCAA choices. St. Louis University, which lost to Dayton 68-58 in the quarter finals, also is in the NCAA tourney as winner of the Missouri Valley Conference title.

Dayton and Duquesne will play at Chicago Friday, meeting Illinois and Princeton, the Big Ten and Ivy league champions. St. John's will face the Southern Conference champion, North Carolina State, at Raleigh, N. C., where Kentucky, the team rated number one in the nation, will meet Penn State.

St. Louis will oppose New Mexico A. and M., Border Conference champion, and Kansas (Big Seven) will play Texas Christian (Southwest Conference) at Kansas City and UCLA (Pacific Coast) will play Santa Clara and Wyoming (Mountain States) will meet Oklahoma City at Corvallis, Ore., in other first round NCAA games.

After La Salle's unforeseen march through the NIT, its veteran coach, Ken Loeffler, professed to be well satisfied that he could concentrate on the Olympics instead of playing in the NCAA.

"We'll rest for about a week; do nothing at all. Then we'll practice a bit," he said. "From my standpoint, as a coach, I'd just as soon not be in the NCAA—but maybe that's because I'm getting old."

Coach Tommy Blackburn of Dayton had a different idea. He called for a hard practice session today and plans to keep working until his team leaves for Chicago Thursday.

"Take a lesson from this," he shouted to his despondent players after their defeat. "We'll go to Chicago and win and then come back here and show them."

Catasauqua Upsets Bethlehem, 56-52

Rough Riders Meet Reading At Hershey

Harrisburg (AP)—Catasauqua's Rough Riders are charging up the hill to PIAA basketball honors.

Catasauqua pulled one of the major upsets of the month-long public high school eliminations Saturday night at Philadelphia when it won the District 11 class "A" title from favored Bethlehem, 56-52.

The victory vaulted the Rough Riders into regional play and gained them one of the favored positions, too. Catasauqua, Coatesville, Farrell and Reading are only three games away from the class "A" State championship.

The four have a game less to play than the other eight contenders—Bradford, Meadville, Pittsburgh, Westinghouse, Pottsville, Somerset, Swoyersville, Westmont and Williamsport. They must each win two games this week to draw up even with the four leaders.

Good Luck

It's the luck of the bye that gives Catasauqua, Coatesville, Farrell and Reading the favored positions.

The winner of tomorrow night's Catasauqua-Reading contest at Hershey draws a free pass into the eastern finals at Hershey March 26. Coatesville and Farrell sit out tomorrow's preliminary inter-district games and meet their first regional competition in the semi-finals next Saturday.

Coatesville meets the winner of tomorrow's battle at Kingston between the Swoyersville Sailors and Williamsport's Millionaires.

Farrell's Steelers, defending western champions and decided favorites to reach the state finals, draw the survivor of tomorrow's Somerset-Westmont clash tentatively set for Johnston.

Also playing tomorrow night are Westinghouse and Meadville at Pittsburgh's Pitt field house and Pottsville and Bradford at Kane for the District Nine championship. Those two winners meet Saturday at Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, Jenkintown and Coatesville won regional titles on Saturday night to qualify for Wednesday night's class "C" State championship game. Coatesville edged Roaring Spring at Altoona, 44-44, in the west while Jenkintown downed Pringle, 66-58, at Wilkes-Barre.

Advance

Kutztown's defending class "B" State champions moved into the eastern semi-finals Friday night against Darby by downing Nekehonah at Allentown, 65-44, with center Pete Barto picking up 26 points.

Shickshinny, with Jake Handzelek scoring 31 points, downed Montrose, 77-60, at Kingston Saturday night to move into a regional semi-final game Friday night with Wellsboro of District Four.

Catasauqua, a community of approximately 4,600 persons, is located five miles north of Allentown. The Rough Riders a 14-0 record in sweeping the Lehigh Valley league championship. Prior to their upset of Bethlehem's East Penn Conference champions they routed Wilson Borough, 79-38, to gain the district finals.

Their overall season record now stands at 22-3, including a 72-70 loss to Bethlehem in the season opener. Saturday night's game saw the score tied 12 times before Coach Bob Mushrush's charges shot ahead for keeps in the final three minutes. Little Bobby Wert, smallest man on the team, was high scorer with 14 points.

Kiner Becomes Third Highest Salaried Major Leaguer By Inking One-Year Pact With Bucs

Oakland, Calif. (AP)—Ralph Kiner, slugging outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has signed a new one-year contract for $75,000, the Pirates announced yesterday.

The salary makes Kiner the second highest paid player in the National League and third in baseball today. Only Stan Musial's estimated $80,000 from the St. Louis Cardinals is higher in the loop. Ted Williams' $100,000 from Boston is tops.

Kiner Saturday night delivered the signed contract to Branch Rickey, Pirates' general manager. It had been mailed to him at his Palm Springs, Calif., home, where he returned after the Pirates exhibition game with the PCL San Francisco Seals. The rest of the team stayed on to play with the PCL Oakland Oaks yesterday.

The new contract, for one year only, replaces Kiner's former two-year deal. He reportedly received $65,000 last year.

Kiner had been after a two-year contract and had been given permission to negotiate directly with Bue president John Galbreath.

In the contract which expired at the end of last season the Bue home run slugger had a split proposition besides the salary paid him by the club, Kiner had a private arrangement with Galbreath. Details were not revealed but it is known this split arrangement brought Kiner's salary up to the $65,000 a year level.

This year's contract is a straight deal with the club.

Kiner said Galbreath called him several days ago and suggested terms, adding:

"I was given a copy of the contract and, after thinking it out completely, signed it Saturday and handed it over to Mr. Rickey."

Kiner hit 42 homers last year, the fifth consecutive season in which he either tied or led the majors and sixth as National League king in that department. He started in 1946 with 23. His biggest season was a 1949 when he slugged 54.

Last season Kiner led the Bucs in runs batted in with 169 and batted .309.

St. Francis of Pennsylvania, paced by six-foot, six Maurice Stokes with 20 points, advanced to the quarter-final round by downing Loyola of Baltimore, 65 to 52, in the second game.

St. Mary's was on the short end of a 66-58 score with six minutes of regulation play left, but rallied to make it 76-75. Then, with 1:15 left, Pat Costello of St. Mary's sank a foul that sent the game into overtime.

Fitt Stars
In the overtime Joe Fitt, Scranton's top scorer with 25, made five points and his mates chipped in with four, while the Minnesotans claimed a single field goal by Costello.

Costello was the game's high scorer with 30 points.

Steele Hits 20 Points In Losing Cause

Harrisburg — Stroudsburg bowed out in the first round of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Basketball Tournament here at the Harrisburg YMCA on Saturday, after suffering a 79-61 setback at the hands of Juniata. It was only the second time in five tries that the Stroudsburg club failed to win the state crown.

Marietta went on to win the championship with a 79-69 victory in the final contest. Marietta won its afternoon tussle over South Forks, 86-76.

George Caba, state VFW athletic director, and State Commander James J. Davis, Philadelphia, presented team and individual trophies to the winners.

Although the Stroudsburg club, coached by Tom Shiffer, went down to defeat, Ray Steele racked up 20 points in a losing cause, on eight goals from the field and four from the foul line.

Close Battle
The quietest representing Monroe County was able to hold the upper hand only in the second period, 19-16, after Juniata reached the end of the first round on the right side of a 20-17 tabulation. The quietest were deadlocked at halftime, 36-36.

Juniata held the upper hand in the third stanza, 19-15, and went into the home stretch with a 55-51 advantage. The Juniata quintet made certain of victory with a giant 24-10 budge in the scoring during the fast ten minutes of action.

Stroudsburg made 15 of 31 shots from the foul line, while Juniata came through with 19 conversions in 35 attempts from the charity stripe.

High scoring honors for the winning Juniata team went to Bruch and Heim, with 22 and 21 markers respectively.

Warsaw, Poland, (AP)—Poland has protested again to the United States that thousands of Polish children have not been repatriated from Germany's U.S. zone, the Warsaw press announced yesterday. It is the fourth such protest since 1947.

The new note answers a U.S. communication last September stating that more than 1,300 displaced Polish youngsters have been turned over to Poland.

Troops Of 45th To Leave Korea

Seoul, Korea (AP)—The Army said last night that several hundred officers and enlisted men of the U.S. 45th Infantry, former Oklahoma National Guard division, would leave Korea next week for the United States.

The group will be the first 45th Division troops returning home under the Army's new "phase-out" program for National Guard units on active duty.

Attached Garage Landscapes Better

If it can be located where it does not obstruct necessary light and air, it is better to build the garage as a part of the house. Separate garages cut up the yard and make it difficult to develop any scheme of yard layout. An attached garage is more convenient and often improves the architectural appearance of the house. Placing the garage at the back of the lot is merely a habit inherited of the days of horses and carriages.

Army Plans To Test New Malaria Drug

Washington (AP)—About 1,000 soldiers volunteers will help the Army test a new drug, primaquine, which it believes may be the best one developed thus far to combat malaria.

All of the soldiers are Korean war veterans who have no recorded history of malaria while in the Far East but who were not given primaquine before returning to the U. S.

The Army said the reason for the test is to "furnish conclusive proof" of the new drug's ability to prevent malaria.

The tests will start this week at Ft. Dix, N. J., Ft. Knox, Ky., Camp Breckinridge, Ky. and Ft. Benning, Ga.

The Army announced last August that primaquine was being tested extensively in the field and might provide a rapid cure for malaria. Malaria has been combated among U. S. troops in Korea by dosages of another drug, chloroquine. This drug, like old-fashioned quinine and the drug atabrine used in World War Two, is neither a complete preventative nor a complete cure for malaria.

The Army says it has found that primaquine is particularly effective against the phase of malaria when it appears in the liver cells. This finding has led to the use of both chloroquine and primaquine for all troops returning from Korea by surface ship since last December. The treatment takes 14 consecutive days, so men returning by air have not all been given the treatment.

Democratic Leaders Plan Area Meeting

Harrisburg (AP)—Four organization candidates for statewide offices will meet county Democratic leaders and local candidates at a series of regional meetings starting Tuesday.

Philip Mathews, Carlisle, chairman of the Democratic campaign committee for the April 22 primary election, said the meetings will be held during a week-long tour.

Democratic statewide candidates endorsed by the party include Federal Judge Guy K.
